skins. Another was Richard Foster. The first appears to be a n of Bartholomew Hoskins and the second was a son-in-law. The ct that both Richard Foster and Bartholomew Hoskins were on the ne ship being brought over by Bartholomew Hoskins, strongly incates that these Bartholomews were father and son, especially in ew of the fact that Richard Foster was his stated son-in-law. chard Foster married Dorcas Hoskins. Richard Foster was in Vir-nia as early as 1635 having arrived on the ship Safety at age with Bartholomew Hoskins. He testified in 1639 that Bartholew Hoskins was his father and that his wife was Dorcas. The fe of Bartholomew Hoskins was also named Dorcas and was in Eng-nd in 1641. In that year she presented a petition to the House Lords "on behalf of her said husband now in Virginia - that all oceedings in a suit commenced by John Carter and Joane his wife ainst the said Bartholomew Hoskins may be stayed."[19]

On April 29, 1653 Bartholomew Hoskins patented 400 acres in wer Norfolk "in Broad cr. a branch of Eastern Br. of Elizabeth & adj. his own land" (his 400 acre patent in 1648).[20] This 0 acres was confirmed by patent again on Dec. 1, 1654. This 800 re patent on the northside of Broad Creek where it connects with e eastern branch of the Elizabeth River appears to have been the st home of Bartholomew Hoskins. In 1655 he acquired his last tent, 300 acres by assignment.[21] By this time he had acquired er 4,000 acres of land and become a man of prominence in his mmunity. He was among the vestrymen for the Parish of Lynnhaven, member of the County Court and the representative for Lower Norlk County in the House of Burgesses, 1649-1656.[22] In conclud-g this sketch on the life of Bartholomew Hoskins several things e well to point out. He was a man of great bravery, a man of lventure, who faced many times a treacherous ocean and the dan-ers of a new and strange land. The evidence shows that he was ry strong physically and mentally. He was a man familier with e sea, with sailors and merchants. Bartholomew Hoskins was one the very earliest of the colonial merchants. He was in the anguard of transporting British Civilization to the new world and most worthy and distinguished immigrant ancestor.

Bartholomew Hoskins and his wife Dorcas had issue:

a. Bartholomew Hoskins - of whom little is known. However he was brought over by Bartholomew Hoskins I five times from England as is recorded in the before mentioned patent surveyed on January 1, 1648 for 1,340 acres on the [illegible] river. In 1667 and 1668,

c. Richard Hoskins - a mariner associated with John Hosk of Northumberland in 1666 and 1667.
d. Dorcas Hoskins married Richard Foster and had a daugh ter, Dorcas. Richard and Dorcas (Hoskins) Foster had descendants among whom were the Calta of Williamsburg Virginia.[24]
e. Thomas Meares, son-in-law, succeeded by Bartholomew Meares of Northampton and Accomack.

Bartholomew Hoskins was dead by 1663 for on February 3rd he was referred to by the records of old Rappahannock County as "Bartho. Hoskins late of Eliz. River in the county of Lower Nor folk in Virginia, dec'd."[25]

There were other early Hoskins in Virginia. There was, of course, the already mentioned William Hodgkins (Hoskins) of Rap hannock County. There was Robert Hoskins who owned 1,150 acres Rappahannock County on Naylers Creek which he assigned in 1660 Samuel Nichols and Edward Rowzee.[26] His widow Catherine marri Francis Downer in 1677 and Mr. Avery Nayler in 1685.[27] There was also an Anthony Hoskins of Northampton County and an Edward Hoskins of York County, b. 1614 - d. circa 1670. The line of d scent given here has much support in the original records howev These other Hoskins, except for William Hodgkins of Rappahannoc County, have no known connection to one another or to Bartholom Hoskins.

2. Capt. John Hoskins (c.1625-1680) - first appears in Virgini as being transported from England by Thomas Meares in his four hundred acre patent of 1648. Meares patented this land on Coos Creek on the west side of the Elizabeth River in Lower Norfolk.
Next to this patent in the patent book and for the same year an acreage is one to Bartholomew Hoskins on Broad Creek, on the ea side of the Elizabeth River. Thus Bartholomew Hoskins and Thom Meares listed their patents together and they were for the same acreage and year and on the same creek. Thomas Meares, as befo stated, appears to have married a daughter of Bartholomew Hoski not only because of their identical patents and the transportin of John Hoskins but because he is followed in the Meares family "Bartholomew" Meares and in the Hoskins family by "Thomas" Hoskins, both in the next generation. The transporting of John Hos kins from England would seem to be a family project. Thomas Mea was [illegible] a favor for Bartholomew Hoskins who had already brough over [illegible] Hoskins in 1645 and Bartholomew Hoskins (Jr.) in 1649 as well as a servant, Richard Foster. In 1635 that fro
